WHAT IS RC&D?

A nonprofit organization that makes things happen.

RC&D stands for Resource Conservation and Development.

Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Councils play an important role in the conservation, development, and utilization of natural resources.

Congress created this public/private partnership as a way of engaging local leaders to leverage limited federal dollars.

RC&D Councils provide a focal point of local leadership and bring together private citizens and local, state and federal agencies to improve the economic, social and environmental well-being of their area. The premise of the RC&D Program is that local people know what is best for their communities.

Multiple Sources of Funding

Funding for the RC&D Council comes from membership fees, grants, donations, and income producing projects.

Council Projects are completed by securing grants, donations, and volunteers.

Each RC&D Council has an Area Plan defining Council goals and objectives. RC&D Councils serve as a conduits for USDA Programs that assist in Area Plan implementation. RC&D projects provide practical solutions for Community Development, Land Conservation, Environmental Enhancement and Water Management issues.

RC&D Councils partner with others on projects that are of regional or local importance. The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) provides a full-time coordinator for each designated RC&D Council.

Southeastern Pennsylvania Resource Conservation & Development (SEPA RC&D) Council covers seven counties: Bucks, Berks, Chester, Delaware, Lehigh, Montgomery, and Northampton. SEPA RC&D Council is made up of representatives from the counties in the Council Area. The Council includes private citizens, representatives from conservation districts, state and local government agencies, regional authorities, organizations, and businesses. All Council members serve as volunteers.

Counties

There are currently nine (9) RC&D Councils in Pennsylvania and over 375 in the nation. RC&D Councils are 501(c)3 nonprofit organizations.
